What will be your Legacy?

We all want to be remembered in some small way. What is the purpose of life if we are not remembered?

How can your spouse, your parents, your friends, describe you to your children?

How can they portray your smile, your laughter, your voice?

How can you make sure that your child knows they meant the world to you, and what your hopes are for them?

How can you keep yourself in their hearts and minds forever?

Don't let YOUR family stories fade away.

Take time out to create a special piece of yourself they can treasure forever, and share with their children to come. There are a lot of memories in our lives that we let slip away. They are memories that cannot be recaptured or replaced except in our minds. There are some events in our life that we would like to save and recall the moments. This is especially true in the case of a new born baby and its development through the years. Children also have highlights in their lives that you and them would like to keep such as school plays special events and graduations. We only go thru life once and these are special moments that are proud, heart-warming and sentimental.
